

I want know that any limit is there that is should be in India before traveling to US for same client in B1 Visa

Q: I need to travel to US -Dallas on B1 Visa by next month. I already traveled to the same client and came back on last month 23rd I was there in US for 89 days in that visit. Now I need to travel by next month 15th.I want know that any limit is there that is should be in India before traveling to US for same client in B1 Visa.

A: There is really not a limit, however there should be sufficient space in time between your visits so that there is no presumption of your intent to live in the USA. It may also help if you could obtain a letter from your current employer explaining that you are needed to travel to the USA for the foreign companies business dealings. If this is an ongoing issue, you should then contact an experienced immigration attorney and pursue another type of temporary employment visa.
